SUMMARY.

FARMER'S. SYDNEY.

The gloom of the Canadian disaster was brightened by many acts of heroism, but hundreds were drowned in their efforts.

Over a million dollars worth of silver was lost with the sinking of the steamer.

Exhibits of sympathy for the mourners have been sent to the King, the German Emperor, and other Royalties.

A writ for $40,000 has been issued against the captain of the steamer, which was the cause of the disaster.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.

(Before the Justice Sly, Mr. Justice Ferguson, and Mr. Justice Harvey.)

COOGEE MOTOR FATALITY.

Arthur Brown, who was sentenced to five years' penal servitude by the Chief Justice, Sir William Cullen, on March 26, on a charge of wilfully causing the death of a person known as the Coogee motor fatality and the death of Mrs. Alice Louisa Doddington, appealed against the sentence. The ground for the appeal was that further evidence could be produced to the court which was not given at the trial.

Mr. Justice Sly, in delivering judgment, said the only question at the trial was whether the car was driven by the man or not.

He alleged that he was not driving the car, and was not in any car on that night. The evidence called by the Crown was absolute that he was to have stated. He could not see how the evidence tended to have called him, as he was going to assist him. The statement given by Miss Bennett to the police was completely contradicted by his statements at the trial. The other who seemed to be unable to fix the night exactly, the best she could do being to show where Brown was at 8.30 p.m. on a certain night. Taking into consideration also the circumstances of the case, he could see no reason for disturbing the verdict.

Mr. Justice Ferguson and Mr. Justice Harvey concurred, and the appeal was dismissed.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

REX v HOLMES.

Pursuant to leave granted by Mr. Justice Pringle, Mrs. Holmes applied for a new trial in connection with the charge upon her that she was drunk before John Dawson on March 3 last. The charge against him was that of assaulting and robbing Hugh McKenzie of a purse containing £4 on February 14, 1914.

The charge for the prosecution was that there was fresh evidence material to the issue before the jury, which was not available at the time of the trial.

Mr. W. Walker, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, appeared to support the application, and Mr. Dawson (instructed by the Crown Solicitor), appeared for the Crown.

The Honors dismissed the appeal.

REX v AMY THOMPSON.

This was an application for leave to appeal lodged by Amy Thompson, who was sentenced to two years' light labour by his Honor Judge Docker on March 6, 1914, at the Sydney Quarter Sessions, on a charge of larceny. Thompson, who was 18 years of age, had now urged that the sentence was excessive.

Mr. Dawson (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) appeared for the Crown. The Honors refused leave to appeal.

REX v CONSTABLE.

Robert Failes, constable, who was constable for John Dawson, asked leave to appeal against the sentence of four years imposed upon him on a four charge of breaking and entering.

The employee in question, a lady pianist, was also present for the defense, and that the prisoner did not see the written character that was put before the judge at the trial.

Mr. Dawson (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) appeared for the Crown. The Honors dismissed the appeal.

GOVERNMENT INQUIRY.

OTTAWA, June 1.

References were made to-day throughout England in the churches and chapels to the sinking of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence, and the great loss of life thereby. Notable services were held in the representative offices of the Board of Trade, and the Canadian Government has issued a writ against Captain Anderson, the master of the Storstad, claiming £400,000.

Seamen on the Storstad say that Captain Anderson was not at duty at the time of the collision. It is stated that the Storstad was ordered astern before she struck the Empress of Ireland.

GOVERNMENT INQUIRY.

OTTAWA, June 1.

The Canadian Government has ordered an investigation into the disaster in conjunction with the British Board of Trade.

Over a million dollars' worth of silver was lost in the沉没.

One hundred and 100 residents of Toronto who were aboard the Empress of Ireland 10% were drowned, and out of 100 members of the Salvation Army, including delegates to the London conference, 22 only were rescued.

The bow of the Empress of Ireland, which sank the liner, was raised to a distance of 15ft, and the anchors were driven into the hull.

Mr. and Mrs. Neville were returning to some Irland after a tour with Mr. Lawrence Irving.

When the Storstad struck the Empress of Ireland Captain Kendall shouted to the crew, "Keep your heads, don't get excited. One of the steers is going to get the people out of the steerage, don't forget, women and children first."

Captain Kendall made Mr. Hayes, the purser, farewell on the bridge when the water was lapping over his feet, and gave a passenger his life belt. Mr. Hayes, who had been dangled into the water together, was picked up by Mr. and Captain Kendall, and was found later clinging to some wreckage.

Hundreds of people on the liner were drowned in their sleep.

Mr. Henry Seaton-Farr insisted upon Mr. Durling, of Shanghai, taking his life belt. Mr. Durling was saved.

SYMPATHY OF ROYALTY.

The King has called to the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada) expressing his deep grief over the awful disaster, and his heartfelt sympathy with the mourners.

The German Emperor has telephoned to King George, expressing the deepest sympathy and the loss of so many valuable lives.

Queen Alexandra and Prince Henry of Prussia have also sent similar messages of grief.

A RUN OF MISFORTUNE.

Among the watchers for news in London was Captain Alfredo Mrs. Wild, whose son was drowned in the Britannic. Her husband was the chief officer on the Titanic, and perished in that great disaster. Her brother, Mr. George Evans, was sixth officer on the Titanic, and was also drowned, while her brother Frederick was an officer on the Empress of Ireland. A reply is not expected to arrive until to-day.

REMARKABLE COINCIDENCE.

SISTER SHIP AND COLLIER COLLIDE.

It is a coincidence that the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, the sister ship to the Empress of Ireland, should have been in collision two years ago with a steamer in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence River.

In the case of the Empress of Ireland, however, the tank was turned, the liner hitting the oiler, the Helvetia, amidships, and sinking her. The collision occurred 10 miles west of Fane Point, and the bows of the Empress of Ireland, conveying the warning that a large iceberg had been seen.

Shortly afterwards the iceberg suddenly loomed ahead, and Captain Wotten reversed the engines, but a slight collision occurred. The boats were awash, and the passengers were thrown into the water. Some of the passengers were placed in the boats, but it was afterwards found that the ship was not leaking, though her bow was badly buckled.

CROSSING THE FRONTIER.

AN AEROPLANE INCIDENT.

BERLIN, May 31.

The "Taegliche Rundschau" states that Great Britain has definitely rejected the request of Russia and France to join the Franco-Russian naval convention.

The paper adds: "Sir Edward Grey (British Foreign Secretary) informed that the British Government desired, in reference to British settlement to maintain good relations with Germany, and in such a way that these people were given a chance of being saved on the floating wreck.

AUSTRALIAN PASSENGERS.

The Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, Ltd., has received no further news yesterday regarding the Australian passengers lost at the time of the catastrophe. The company sent a cablegram to the Canadian Pacific yesterday, asking for the names and addresses of the Australian passengers on the Royal Mail Line who had joined the Empress of Ireland. A reply is not expected to arrive until to-day.

SHIPPING OFFICE BESIEGED.

LISTS EAGERLY SCANNED.

LONDON, June 1.

The Canadian Pacific Company's premises in London were again besieged by a crowd of people, and many sorrowful inquiries were made. Every name and address posted at the office was scanned.

During the afternoon, the celebrated Silver Band, belonging to the Regent Hall branch of the Salvation Army, marched past, playing "Eternal Father, Strong to Save." The bandmen, accompanied by the New Zealand contingent of Salvation Army delegates attending the London conference, marched down the quay of the shipowners with bows and bunting. Subsequently the Salvationists held a memorial meeting in the vicinity. New Zealand delegates addressed the mourners.

LORD MAYOR'S FUND.

The Lord Mayor has opened a Mansion House fund for the dependents of those who were drowned. He invites the Mayors throughout the United Kingdom to open funds.

A convention in London, representing 200,000 Irish residents of Great Britain, opened yesterday.

COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

MINERS SUFFOCATED BY AFTER-DAMP.

LONDON, June 1. Maycock, one of the survivors from the disastrous gas explosion which occurred at Billingtons Colliery, Wharncliffe, states that while boring with others in a byway he was deputed to consult an official.

He had scarcely started on his errand when he heard a noise like a mighty wind, and was carried ten yards along the roadway. He was badly stunned, but did not lose consciousness. Maycock had a faint nameless by. His face was scorched, and his clothes caught alight. He extinguished the flames and struggled to his feet, then crawled along the pit bottom, and communicated with the officials.

The rescuers found all the miners in the byway suffocated by after-damp. The pit has hitherto been regarded as the safest in Yorkshire. The area of the disaster is small.

THE AQUITANIA.

A MAMMOTH LINER.

LONDON, May 31. Immense crowds of people witnessed the Aquitania start her maiden voyage to New York.

In an age of wonderful ships the Aquitania is said to be the most wonderful—not alone for size, though she is the largest British liner in commission, but for her several reasons. She is a great ship, with a hull of principal dimensions: length—1025ft.; breadth, 97ft.; and depth to deck, 32ft. She has accommodations for 1025 passengers, and a crew of 1000. She is fitted out in a most elaborate style, and the traveller may select his own suite of rooms and dines or lunch at any hour of the day in the many restaurants. Xmas trees, Jacchaean grottoes, while skilled musicians play in the gallery. In addition to beautifullly-appointed saloons and social rooms, there is a great room for dancing, and hundreds of feet long invite the traveller, who may also stroll in the long gallery and study the many beautiful pictures.

Perkins' artistic and original insight is apparent the moment one enters the ship. The main entrance hall contains an original decorative painting by Panetta, and a bust of Neptune, and the portrait of the National Gallery, and the portrait of the Queen, Queen Victoria. Most of the carved trophies have been copied from oil-sails at Greenwich, the largest of which is the "Sovereign of the Seas" of the Queen (1667), the largest of all the ships. There are also distinct classes of suits named after the artists—Renoir, Holman, Van Dyk, Velasquez, Rembrandt, Hals, Reynolds, and Gainsborough. In the smoking-room there are 2500 square feet. About 10,000 lamps light the ship, and the electric installation supplies current to drive 1000 fans, ranging from 1000 to 100000 cubic feet per minute, with an intervening space of 4ft. divided into over 40 watertight compartments. On one side of this there are 180000 cubic feet of space, and on the other a space of 23 knots, and will maintain with the Lusitania and Mauretania the Cunard express mail service between Liverpool and New York.

LEONARD BORWICK RECITALS.

The reception accorded Mr. Leonard Borwick last night on his reappearance in Sydney after an absence of nearly three years was gratifying from every point of view. As a pianist he has won a place by an extra finish, which, whilst reflecting the musically refined, distinctive stamp of any kind to lovers of the obvious. Hence the fact that the Concordia Hall was densely crowded, and that his efforts were recognized with the most whole-hearted enthusiasm, suggests that there are more lovers of the best in musical art in the city than pessimists who have been led to suppose.

Mr. Borwick's first piano transcription of Bach's "Organ Prelude in E flat," in which the leaping phrases of the opening are enveloped in an atmosphere of grandeur characteristic of the instrument of many voices, until the mood changed to one of that pure and unaffected grace in which the great composer is equally at home. The artist exhibited the power of his art to the City Council of the row of fig trees in Macquarie-street, which is certainly one of the city's most natural and charming. The artist was received with a hearty ovation, and was stopped short of the sentimental end of the composition, which the artist was recalled five times.

Mr. Borwick's great reputation in Schubertian doubles, and his skill as a teacher, which his group was considerable, and included two or three pieces that belonged to the "household words" of musical literature. The "Nocturne in F," for example, with the opening, rendered in bell-like tones, the "Intermezzo," in which the player seemed to weave the respective sombre scenes of life, and the "Waltz in G major," with its "Gavotte," which the artist sustained the interest of the whole composition, which was rendered, as often where the player's soft and subtle touches caused the audience to murmur. The artist's march was especially popular, and the artist was received with a hearty ovation, and was stopped short of the sentimental end of the composition, which the artist was recalled five times.

At a special meeting of the committee of the Royal Art Society's Students' Union last night the following motion was agreed to: "That the committee of the Royal Art Society's Students' Union protest against the destruction of the school of art by the students."
